Canoe Family Passports for 2007

Charlene Krise - The museum has been working with the Squaxin Island Tribe's Enrollment Office and its Legal Department discussing the passports for 2008 Canoe Journey to Cowichan for the past year. The discussions include the necessity of maintaining our intertribal cultural bonds/unification and for ceremony with our northern relatives. The main concern is the possibility of some of our canoe family members not being able to get a passport. Due to the strict guidelines in the Department of Homeland Security and requirements of International passports there are Squaxin Island tribal members who would not be able to travel to Cowichan.

What we have been trying to pursue is the possibility of a federal Tribal ID for crossing the Canadian border, tribal nations nationwide are currently working on the possibility through National Congress of American Indians.

The "Postmaster" or representative can help with passports. This will be costly and require a couple of months. Tribal individuals can apply for passports now and have them ready by the start of the Canoe Journey 2008.

What are your thoughts? Please contact Charlene Krise at 432-3851.

CARF Accreditation of NWITC Programs

June O'Brien - NWITC has been accredited by CARF, a national accrediting body for behavioral health programs, since 1998. The possible outcomes are a three-year accreditation, a one-year accreditation, or non-accreditation depending on the quality of the program surveyed. Each survey NWITC has received a three-year outcome and for the last nine years there have been no deficiencies found at all. In addition, this year we received an exemplary or commendation for excellence of clinical practice.

In 2007 the outpatient program was accredited as an Integrated AOD/MH program with medication management for psychotropic medications. This means that the program was found to meet standards for providing both treatment for Alcohol and Drug Addiction and Mental Health. We asked to be surveyed under these standards as we provide treatment for people with addictions, people with co-occurring mental health and chemical dependency, and we provide service for family members of addicts who may not have addictions.

If you would like a copy of the survey Summary, please call me, June O'Brien, at 360-482-2674.

Alarm Sounds for Young Coho

John Dodge , The Olympian - Juvenile coho salmon are disappearing at an alarming rate before they can migrate out of South Sound, according to a three-year study by the Squaxin Island tribe.

"If we're seeing this many coho die so soon, Puget Sound is definitely not working the way it should," tribal natural resources director Andy Whitener said. "This data show the urgent need to find out why these fish are dying and how Puget Sound is ailing."

Only six of 175 young hatchery and wild coho fitted with acoustic tags were tracked beyond the Tacoma Narrows Bridge. About 25 tagged in Peale Passage and Mill Creek in Mason County made it halfway to the bridge.

"This is an incredibly high dropoff," said Scott Steltzner, fisheries research biologist for the tribe. "We know that some juvenile salmon die along the way, but there shouldn't be this drastic of a drop so soon."

Up to 4 percent of South Sound coho survive their three-year life cycle split between freshwater and the sea.

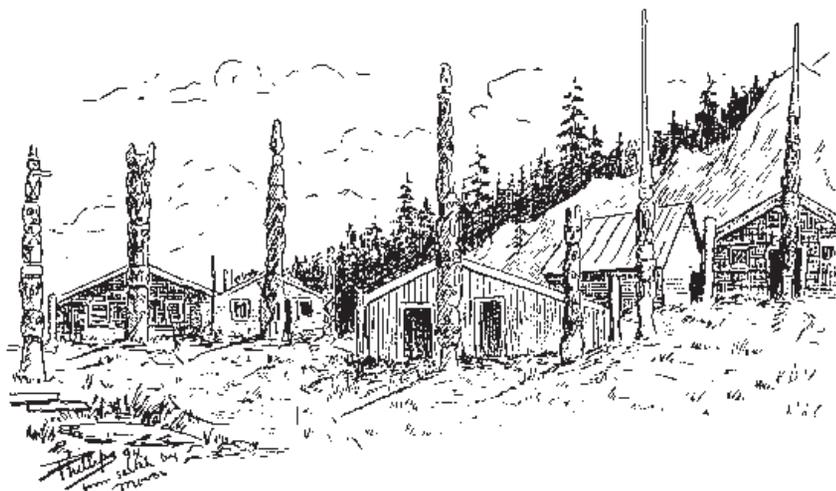

The federally funded study was designed in part to help answer the question of why South Sound coho survival rates have declined dramatically in the past 20 years. The study suggests the fish run into trouble as soon as they start migrating through the marine waters of South Sound.

Possible causes include lack of food or too many predators.

"If there aren't enough fish for the coho to eat, or there are too many fish that eat coho, they aren't going to have much of a chance," Steltzner said.

The study also showed the young fish move around in South Sound and don't just swim out to sea, said Jeff Dickison, tribal assistant natural resources director. Knowing where fish go could help shape estuary and nearshore habitat restoration projects, he said.

Useful follow-up research would include doing stomach content analysis of potential predators in the late spring migration period, including dogfish and harbor seals, Dickison said.

To All Squaxin Island Veterans

As you might have noticed, we have had the ground-breaking ceremony and construction has begun on your veterans memorial. A committee has been working on the memorial for over two years. We would like to invite you to become part of the fund-raising process. We have a few items to sell and have been given permission to include them at the museum art auction. There are many jobs you could volunteer for, such as the presenting of colors at functions, which we have requests for more and more as people learn it is available.

We have been collecting photos and data on all the veterans which we hope to publish in book form when we have completed gathering all the information. As part of that book, we would like each of you to write a sentence, paragraph or story about something that was memorable for you while serving in armed forces. These can be submitted to Glen W. Parker, Bob Whitener or any member of the committee. Glen has a box in the tribal hall for mail.

If you have not seen our PowerPoint presentation, there are disks available for you to look at and see what we are all about. We look forward to hearing from you.

- Glen W. Parker, Chairman

Seeking TAC members

The Squaxin Island Tribe is seeking Squaxin community volunteers to provide community input for two planning projects – a long-range transportation plan update and a transit enhancement plan – to be part of a Transportation Advisory Committee (TAC).

Squaxin seeks a small mix of people that may include community elders, youth, tribal and community members, transit users (i.e. users of Squaxin Transit, Mason Transit), multi-modal transportation users, (i.e. users of bike, car, truck, on-foot, train, plane, boat, skate, skateboard), and transportation users with special needs (i.e. sight limitations, users of a wheelchair or cane).

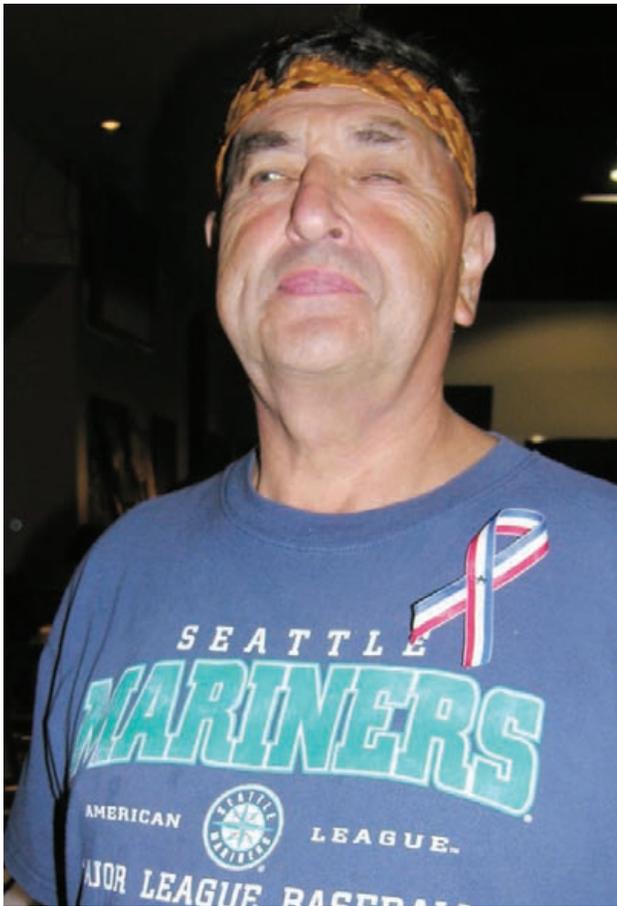

The TAC will be selected in October and meet at least 4-6 times before the plans are approved next summer.

The TAC will provide community feedback by attending meetings, reviewing planning documents, and soliciting comments from people within their varied interest groups.

Please contact Lynn Scroggins at (360) 432-3952 for more information. If you are interested being part of the TAC, please contact Lynn by October 15. Thank you!

Mother Earth

This poem is for all who are trying to end global warming

I woke up today and saw Mother Earth is loosing her flamboyance.

The leaders of society ignore the danger of global warming.

Greed only brings death, destruction and sickness to all mankind.

Help restore her flamboyance.

Bring back the ways of our ancestors
When there was no such thing as greed.

Now look what has happened to her.

Oh, how it saddens this heart of mine
To see all the ugliness done upon her.

Can you hear the cry of Mother Earth dying?

Awake someone to tell them she is truly dying.

Before all her true beauty is lost forever.

Lost into the hands of greed.

Fall Maintenance

It may seem early, but now is the time to think about fall maintenance of the home. Everyone is busy with school and fall activities and winter will be here before we know it. By doing a maintenance check now, the home will be ready for winter and it will save time and money later.

Schedule these jobs to be done this fall as time permits and involve the family in making the home and yard ready for next season.

- Rake debris away from the sides of the house and other outbuildings.
- Clean out gutters and check down spouts and roof for leaks.
- Clean out deck debris above joists.
- Note any foundation, brick or stucco cracks.
- Clean around air condition equipment and compressor.
- Trim away any limbs or shrubs touching the house.
- Clean flower beds and garden areas.
- Inspect and replace any worn weather-stripping.
- Inspect and clean windows, check storm window, if they are used.
- Inspect and lubricate windows for emergency exits.
- Clean out window wells and under decks and porches.
- After gardening season, clean and oil tools.
- Check chimney and have it cleaned, if necessary.
- Check crawl space for broken heating ducts, mold, excess moisture or insects.
- Prepare mowers and other yard equipment for storage.
- Clean the garage and/or storage shed.
- Find proper storage for summer games and sports equipment.

Third Annual Employee Appreciation Celebration Honors Tribal Employees' Dedication

The third annual Squaxin Island Tribe Employee Appreciation Celebration was held September 20th at Little Creek Casino Resort's Grand Ballroom.

Tribal Council members and the Executive Director reminisced about the growth of the Tribe over the past decade or two and thanked the dedicated employees who have made it all possible. Many door prizes were given out and special awards were given to employees reaching career milestones.

Andy Whitener was the employee with the most years of service: 30! In receiving his award, he joked that 30 years ago the Natural Resources Department was located in an old trailer, and 30 years later it is still housed in a trailer. "Natural Resources is just Trailer Trash," he joked. (Natural Resources and Cultural Resources will soon be housed together in a new facility that will be constructed in 2008.)

New Employees

Whitney Jones
Deputy Executive Director

With considerable enthusiasm and commitment, I am happy to have accepted the position of Deputy Executive Director of the Tribe. I've enjoyed serving as the Health and Human Services Director for the last nine years and I am excited to continue working for our community in this new capacity. The Tribe has experienced remarkable growth in recent years and I look forward to additionally contributing to its strength and continued expansion.

I love participating in and supporting tribal events and, when I'm not running around helping with those, I'm probably with my two beautiful daughters, Spirit and Teagan, home reading or baking or out swing-dancing and singing karaoke.

Cindy Hovind
Paralegal

Hi, my name is Cindy Hovind. I recently joined the Tribe's legal staff and bring a broad background from early work in Port Townsend for Peninsula Legal Service to ferry boating. For the last six years I have been immersed in Siuslaw culture. I'm pleased to be back home near my Mum and two grown children, Colin and Brie. Colin works for a branch of Homeland Security; Brie is a primo pastry chef in a Portland bakery. The family member that takes center stage is my three-year-old granddaughter! Off hour passions include oral history and basketry.

Hope to meet you all very soon!

Mary Renville
Indian Child welfare Caseworker

Hi, my name is Mary Renville, and I am the new ICW Caseworker. I joined the Family Services team in mid-July. I am enrolled with the Sisseton Wahpeton Tribe of South Dakota and bring many years of experience with me as a Social Worker in Minnesota. I see my work here as a dynamic and exciting opportunity to promote and enhance healthy, strong families.

Good Health Depends on Good Care

Diabetes is a progressive disease. Often, complications can begin without noticeable symptoms. Therefore, it's important to go for regular check-ups to make sure that all systems are A-OK.

Here are some of the things that will be covered.

- Hemoglobin A1c (your blood sugar control)
- Creatinine and BUN levels (how kidneys are working)
- Cholesterol levels
- Blood pressure
- Feet and lower extremities check
- Immunizations

Schedule your yearly diabetes physical with your provider at the clinic. (Call now before you get busy with the holidays!)

First, schedule your fasting diabetes blood draw (don't eat or drink after midnight the night before). Schedule your "Diabetes Physical" for a few days after the blood draw so your provider can go over the results & make any needed changes.

Hemoglobin A1c

The A1c test will tell you your average blood glucose level for the previous three months. Making sure that your A1c is in your target range helps you keep your risk for complications lower. The American Diabetes Association (ADA) recommends an A1c of less than 7%, while the American Association of Clinical Endocrinologists (AACE) advises an A1c of less than 6.5%. The normal range for people without diabetes is between 4% and 6%.

Check your blood sugar 2 hours after eating to find out how your body handles your food. The numbers for 2 hours after eating correspond most closely with your Hemoglobin A1c (see explanation above). Your blood sugar levels 2 hours after eating should be below 140 or 150. If they are regularly higher than this, you may need to have a change in your medication. See your health provider to discuss your numbers. Remember, if a food has carbohydrate, the larger the portion you eat, the higher your blood sugar will go.

Bring your lunch and attend our Diabetes Support Group on October 15th at 12:15 in the Elder's building to learn more about how food affects your blood sugar. If you want to know how to keep your blood sugar in range with food & activity, contact Patty Suskin, Diabetes Coordinator, at (360) 432-3929 or stop by the Health Promotions Building.

Pot and the Teenage Brain

www.theantidrug.com - New research is giving us better insight into the serious consequences of teen marijuana use, especially how it may impact mental health. Here are some facts:

Young people who use marijuana weekly have double the risk of depression later in life.

Teens aged 12-17 who smoke marijuana weekly are three times more likely than non-users to have suicidal thoughts.

There is evidence of increased risk for schizophrenia in later years in some teens who smoke marijuana.

There is substantial evidence linking marijuana to causal symptoms of depression, suicidal thoughts and schizophrenia. A teen brain is different than an adult brain in many ways. Ever wonder why high schoolers love things and love them so intensely? The limbic system, the area that controls memory and emotions, is highly developed, whereas the prefrontal cortex, the area responsible for judgment, is still developing, well into a person's 20's. This may be why teens tend to make decisions based on their emotions rather than reason.

Certain brain centers, such as the limbic system, are highly influenced by THC (tetrahydrocannabinol), the active ingredient in marijuana. That's right...the same centers responsible for memory formation, emotion, aggression and fear are significantly affected by pot.

This is where YOU come in. The first step in being able to discuss the dangers of marijuana with your teen is knowing the facts.

PILATES

The Diabetes Prevention Program is offering Pilates classes free of charge to all community members Mondays and Wednesdays 4 - 5:00 p.m. at the Health Promotions building. Pilates is a form of exercise that focuses on slow, controlled movements designed to strengthen ligaments, muscles and joints, and increase flexibility. Every exercise can be modified to accommodate injuries, fitness level and comfort. The core of the body is emphasized, and abdominal muscles are engaged in nearly every exercise. Many people find they lose inches by doing Pilates just twice a week.

Outdoor Activity of the Month

Bottle Beach Park already a gem among birders

From The Olympian

What

Trip to Bottle Beach State Park.

Where

Bottle Beach State Park is tucked away just off state Route 105 a few miles east of Westport. This park is about 60 miles from Olympia.

To do

Bottle Beach is a small, lesser-known state park - unless you are a birder. Birders flock to Bottle Beach in the spring and fall to see clouds of migrating shorebirds that feed on worms and crustaceans in the park's extensive mudflats. Bottle Beach, which features three-quarters of a mile of beachfront along Grays Harbor, is always a good place to spot great blue herons, many types of gulls and the odd shorebird. The best shorebird viewing is in spring and fall. Songbirds swarm in the marsh. The best time to see shorebirds is at high tide, as the water pushes them toward the beach. Most of the 70-acre park is dense wetlands and marshes - which makes for spectacular birding.

The park

Bottle Beach is a rustic park, as the only parking area is a small gravel lot. There isn't even a sign, but this spot is worth the drive from South Sound. The sandy beach is studded with interesting driftwood, shells and some beach glass. Visitors can see pilings in the water, which are some of the last relics of the old town of Ocosta.

The beach is a great place to visit for a picnic. If you visit at low tide, the mudflats are alive with clams squirting water from their holes and crabs scuttling around. It's fun to wander around on the mudflats, but look out for soft, sticky spots and don't go out too far from shore.

On the way there

The trail from the rustic parking lot to the beach is about a quarter-mile long, and there are plenty of things to see and do on the short hike.

Check out the marsh creatures - especially herons and other water birds. Ducks and geese often stop in the area, and deer come out in the mornings and evenings. There are thousands of ripe blackberries on the vines along the trail right now.

Bees are very attracted to flowering plants that grow right from the sand at this lesser-known state park.

Directions

Finding Bottle Beach can be a challenge, as there is no sign. Take U.S. Highway 12 to Aberdeen. In Aberdeen, take state Route 105 and start keeping track of the mileage markers. When you're between mile markers 34 and 35, the road will curve and you should look for a sign for Ocosta Third Street on your left. The Bottle Beach parking area is on the right side of the road - right across state Route 105 from Ocosta Third Street. Nearby areas: Westport is just a few miles farther down state Route 105, and Twin Harbors State Park is also nearby off Route 105.

Equipment

Bring binoculars, spotting scopes and cameras. Rain gear and a warm fleece are always good ideas when visiting the coast. A picnic lunch, water, and a bird identification guide will come in handy.

Comforts

None. This park is not yet developed, so there is no drinking water or bathrooms. Westport is less than 10 minutes away.

Safety

Good hiking shoes are a good idea on the trail, and you should wear some kind of shoe or sneaker on the beach and mudflats.

Open Letter to Parents

If you have outdated perceptions about marijuana, you might be putting your teen at risk. Today's teens are smoking a more potent drug and starting use at increasingly younger ages during crucial brain development years. Still think marijuana's no big deal? Remember, you are the most important influence in your teen's life when it comes to drugs, so tell your teen the facts about marijuana. Teens who learn about the risks from their parents are less likely to smoke marijuana or use other drugs than teens who don't. Let your teens know you don't want them using marijuana. Their mental health may depend on it.
